American Men Ferry Pilots in WWII

The Air Transport Auxiliary (ATA)

The Air Transport Auxiliary

1939

Formed in 1939 to ferry new and repaired aircraft from factories and maintenance units to RAF and Fleet Air Arm bases

A civilian organisation, administered by BOAC – not part of the RAF.

b. 1 Jun 1906, Bexley, Kent

M.10 - Sir Gerard John Regis Leo d'Erlanger CBE

Creator and Commanding Officer of the ATA

ATA American Airmen – First Batch, August - September 1940

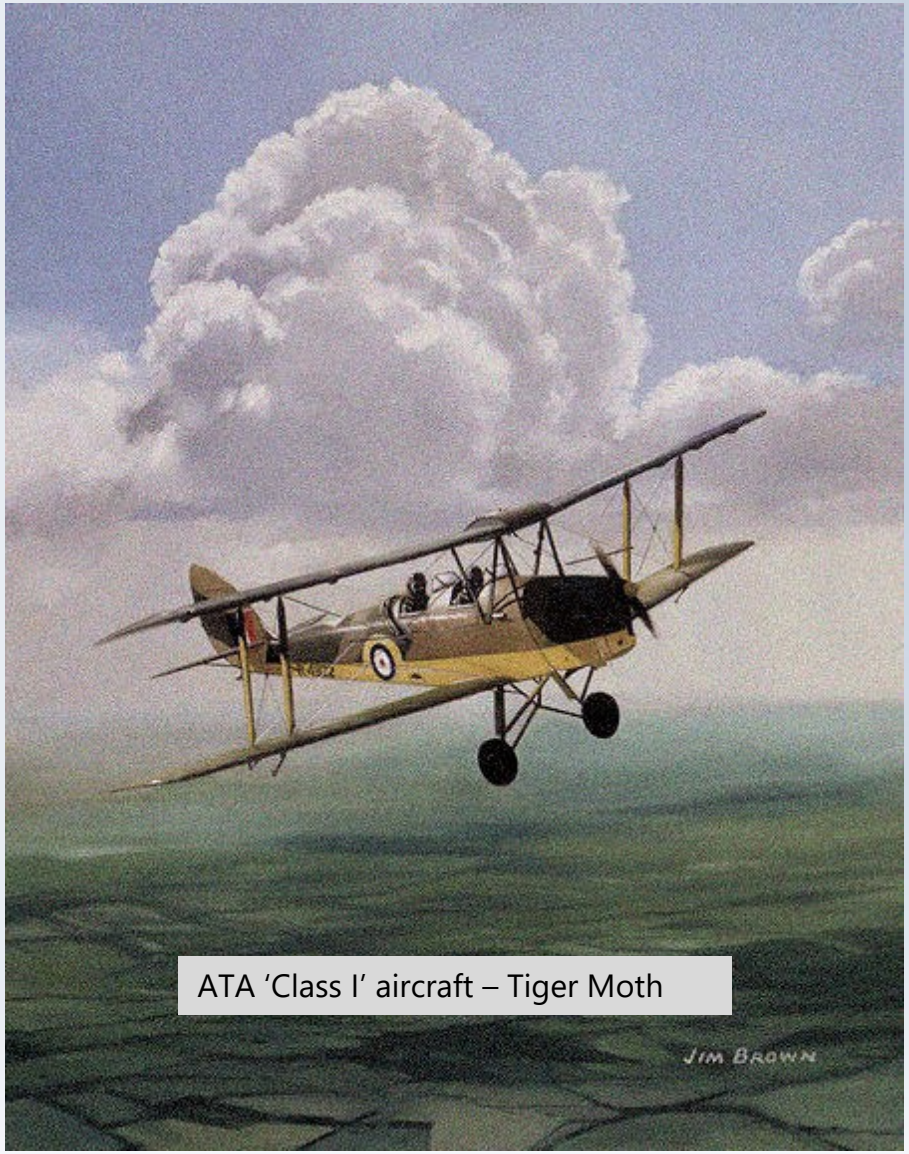

At the height of the Battle of Britain in August and September 1940, 68 American airmen - all experienced pilots with at least 350 hrs - were offered lucrative one-year contracts by Clayton Knight (a friend of Lord Beaverbrook) to join the ATA via BOAC.

The pay was $150 a week (tax free), plus $10 a day whilst in transit, $100 relocation expenses, and a $500 bonus at the end of a year.

A further 23 would follow before the end of the year.
